

Nina Schofield

We are delighted to Welcome Nina Schofield to 23rd Precinct Music Publishing. Classically trained and having successfully completed a Degree in Vocal Performance at the Academy of Contemporary Music, Nina has done a great deal of professional work to widespread acclaim.

The release of her first album "Drifting" led to a nomination for Best Female Vocal at The Hollywood Music in Media Awards with her second single "Slow Down Soldier" charting at number 4 in the iTunes Singer/Songwriter charts.

Fresh from a nomination for Best Female Artist at this years Best of British Music Awards, Nina's current featured vocal/co- write with successful trance act Aurosonic has seen radio support from the likes of Armin Van Buuren and ASOT.

No stranger to the stage, Nina, who is a proud ambassador for charity The Rose Road Association, has already performed at prestigious venues and events including The Paralympics Torch Lighting Ceremony at Stoke Mandeville Stadium, The Buxton Dome, Derby and The Montreux Jazz Festival as well as supporting artists like John Power (The La's/Cast) and Polly Scattergood. Working with internationally renowned producers and writers such as Jud Friedman (Whitney Houston), Richard Niles (Kylie Minogue, Ray Charles), and Lloyd Perrin (Pixie Lott, Newton Faulkner) has helped sculpt Nina's individual sound into something truly unique as her work with writers, artists and producers around the world continues to grow.

Nina Schofield has proven herself as a prolific songwriter, taking part in a number of writing camps across the globe including Stockholm (Sweden) and Dublin (Rep. Ireland). Most recently, Nina co-penned Latin inspired pop song 'Contigo' alongside James Bird and rising Scottish star Rachelle Rhiene.
